At a protracted Cabinet meeting to-day the Fre-mont difficulty was very fully discussed. Secretary Chase, the only member of the Cabinet who opposed Fremont's appointment at first, questioned very seriously the propriety of his removal at this time. It was finally decided to send Jadge Davis of Bloom-ington, Illinois, a personal friend of the President to St. Louis, to examine the accounts of parties who have claims, and such as he declares to be right and proper will be paid forthwith.

cloth Only, and not clothing, to be Bought in Europe.

The following correspondence will serve to correct a wide spread mesapprehension. We know that the order for cloths sent out to Europe to be executed by George P. Smith of Pittsburgh, accompanied by Col. Thomas, Quartermaster U. S. A., was for $800,000 worth only, instead of £8,000,000 worth, as stated in the Boston papers. Mr. Smith is a wealthy resired merchant, of the highest reputation in business circles. When compensation was offered to him for making this purchase, he tendered his services to the Government free of charge. The Quartermaster was instructed to pay his daily expenses, and bothing more.

WAR DEPARTMENT, Oct. 19, 1801.

Be Crass G. Nazor, Chairman Board of Traide, thoston, Mass: Sire: The Secretary of War has been a sent for steadys past, and your telegram has been referred to me for sitestion. The Government, while every exertion, has not sen able to pracure woolean to clocke troops suffering in the field. They fill the hispitals at great expense of fife and nevey. The Government, has instructed its agents to purchase set largely, but only enough to meet the immediate and presing demands of the service. The goods ordered will be made up in this country, by our own people. This supply, with what is now making is this country, it is hoped will set eve the distress among the troops, and it is believed that full employment for all our manufactories will yet remain to provide for the wants of the Government and the country at large. The Germannent would deserve the executations of the people if its exemitted its detenders to suffer white waiting for increased productions here to meet the pressing wants of the sruny.
You may rest assured that the polley of the Sucretary, and the flux manufactures, when is a most bit to be done without roadity in high yet to the ben in the field. If you can ald us in this toward, be glad to have your assistance to this end.

M. C. MEIGS, Quartermaster-General.

THE DURATION OF THE WAR.

From The Richmond Waig.

All the indications point to a long war. At one time we had boped that the dash—the clan of our volunteers unrestrained, but simply guided by able tenst, in the heart of the enemy's country, and contrast, in the heart of the enemy's country, and contrasted an honerable peace. But a different policy has obtained. We of the South, who were to attack, have adopted a system of defense, and, so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and, so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and, so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and, so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and, so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and so far, have have adopted a system of defense, and so far, have have the Isthmus on the North Star, for New-York, on the 15th inst.

side of the Potomac, it is impossible for us to destroy is supremacy at sea or prevent his predatory incursions on our coast. We are subjected to all the distractages of a defensive war of indefinite duration, or to a peace dictated by the enemy. The possibility of our success is not within the range of accident. To prevent our subjugution or extermination is all

To prevent our eulopsquion or extermination is all be can hope for.

We have no skill a strategy, and know nothing of the means at the command of our Generals; but if this is all that is left to us, we had as well be looking out for terms of enbmission, and the sooner the better. An endless war, which affords no opportunity for either victory or revenge, is a bootless undertaking.

The Southern people who have offered themselves and their all for the prosecution of this war, and who have reposed implicit confidence in the men intrusted with its conduct, have looked for something better. It is not to be disquised that a sense of uncasiness and distrust is gradually supplaining that generous confidence. A suspicion is gaining ground that all the advantages of our position have not been profited by as they might have been; that the war has not been prosecuted with the vigor and energy demanded by the emergency. We near muterings has not been prosecuted with the vigor and energy demanded by the emergency. We near mutterings and complaints, apart from those connected with the quartermaster, Commissary, and Medical Departments, growing out of the appointment of so many civilians to high commands. Many of these appointments have filled the country with apprehensions of some great disaster.
